The Money King Declares for Presbyterianism.

He and His Daughter Give $12,500 for Church Extension.

Notable Reception at His Home to Preachers and Laymon.

Close upon the "coming out" of Jay Gould as a society man comes an announcement of the character of the Wall street wix-

Mr. Gould has been for many years a rather more than occasional attendant at the Presbyterian church of Rev. Dr. John R, Paxton, m West Forty-second street, but he has never me a member of the church. Last even ing, however, at a reception by Miss Helen and her father to the Committee of the Presbytery of New York on Church Extenon, given at the Gould residence, 578 Fifth avenue, Dr. Paxton made an announcement n Mr. Gould's name. He said that Mr. Gould's modesty restrained him from speaking, but that the millionaire had told him that after many years' deliberabyterian Church was the best and truest re its work of church extension was the wisest

This announcement was received by the gathering with congratulations. It was lisened to by Miss Gould and her brothers, George, Edwin and Howard Gould. Ther urer Warner Van Norden, of the Committee, stated that the Committee was in need of money and would have no trouble in spending $100,000.

Subscription cards were distributed among the guests, and while they were being filled out Rev. Dr. John Hall, Chairman of the Committee, remarked that he had met Mr. Gould only once before, and then he had go to him to beg for a pass for a missionary to China who had come home to the bedside of a sick wife and desired to return to his labor

" I entered Mr. Gould's office with fear and had many misgivings. I had never seen Mr. Gould, and you can all sympathize with my feelings. He received me cordially, said after hearing me that it was a deserving case, and next day I received the desired railway and steamship tickets."

Among the guests were Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, of Union Theological Seminary, and his dearest foe, Col. Elliott F. Shepard. The latter, with Robert Ogden, of Philadelphia George Alexander than said :

I have been strictly enjoined to speak of nothing but money. You are all rich men here, and we want money from you. But we oo not assume a suppliant attitude. We need money, but not ball as much as you need to give it. Money has an immense power for good or for evil. Many men, however, get so carried away by the pursuit of wealth, and get the habit so fastened upon them that they lose sight of the higher duty. I hope I have not spoken in a way to give offense to any of the guests, or to our host, Mr. Gould."

offense to any of the guests, or to our host, Mr. Gould."

Mr. Gould."

Most of the cards had been returned to Tressurer Van Norden by this time, and he announced that Mr. Gould had given $10,000 and Miss Helen Gould $2,500.

This announcement was greeted with prolonged applause. There were several other subscriptions of $1,000 each, and others of $500 and $100 each.

Among those who sat down to a supper served after the meeting were Morris K. Jesup, $00m K. Kennedy, Henry G. Marquand, Walter S. Guernsey, E. F. Hyde, David B. Frison, Rev. Dr. H. D. Noyes, John Sinclar, R. B. Roosevelt, Rev. Dr. C. R. Parkhurst, John Blocan, John E. Parsons, Rev. D. Philipschaff, W. D. Sloane, William F. Havemeyer, William Wheelook, Henry M. Fragier, William E. When Judge Van Brunt had taken his seat and the names of the jurymen who were chosen at yesterday's session had been called. the inquiry at once proceeded.

W. Bourke Cockran, who is the leading counsel for Field, made the opening address to the jury, calling attention to the importance of the inquiry, which would decide whether or not the prisoner was morally re-sponsible for the acts which constituted the imes with which he was charged. He reminded the jury of the distinguished embers of Edward M. Field's family. His ather, Cyrus W. Field, and his works; David Dudley Field, Supreme Court Justice Stephen J. Field and Rev. Heary W. Field were all remarkable men.

The family, however, he claimed, was tainted with insanity, and many members o it had died in asylums. A sister of the pris oner was now an inmate of an asylum for the insane.

Edward M. Field, Mr. Cockran said, had, when a boy, failen from a horse and injured his head, and it was noticed after this that he was frequently subject to hallucinations and acted queerly.

For many months previous to the failure of the firm of Field, Lindley, Wieeners & Co., the lawyer said, Mr. Field's family have observed a change in his manners. He was nervous and excitable, and would on some occasions suddenly burst into tears without provocation or apparent reason.

Mr. Cockran described how Mrs. Field had made the discovery, a day or two before the failure was announced, that her husband was insane, and how the family were taking proceedings to have him locked up, when the investigation of the affairs of the bankrupt firm led to the discovery of his irregularities, and his subsequent indictment.

The only question for the jury to decide.

Mr. Cockran said, was whether Field was at the present time of surficiently sound mental condition to understand the nature of the charge against him, and intelligently advise with his counsel as to the conduct of his defense.

They were not to consider at all the question of his moral responsibility for his alleged criminal acts, but simply decide upon his present mental condition.

Just at that moment a Thirty-fourth street cross-town car came in sight. The women waited for it to pass, but it had hardly got abreast of them when another car, travelling in the opposite direction, came along. Mrs. McCoy screamed and ran back to the sidewalk, but Miss Palmer was atruck by one of the horses and fell on the track. The baby rolled between the horses.

Before the driver could stop his horses, the forward wheel of the car passed over one of Miss Palmer's legs.

A stranger rescaed the baby from its perilous position between the horses and restored it to its mother's arms. Miss Palmer was taken to the New York Hospital where she died of her injuries.
